> Re:   Annual Review of Base Rates for Fuel Costs of Duke Energy Progress, LLC
> Docket Number: 2022-1-E
>
> DEP's Order of Witnesses

Dear Ms. Boyd:

Duke Energy Progress, LLC ("DEP" or the "Company") respectfully submits this letter in response to Order No. 2022-52-H, issued in the above-referenced docket. The Company's witnesses and counsel intend to appear in-person for the hearing, and the Company will present its witnesses as described below:

1. Bryan Walsh and Tom Ray (in person; direct testimony presented in panel format)
2. Dana Harrington and Jason Martin (in person; direct testimony presented in panel format)
3. Kevin Houston (in person; direct testimony)
4. Brett Phipps and James J. McClay, III (in person; direct and rebuttal testimony presented in panel format)
While in other cases, DEP may elect to present rebuttal testimony following the presentation of direct testimony by other parties' witnesses, it does not believe that such will be necessary in this case. DEP therefore requests that the Commission permit it to consolidate the presentation of its direct and rebuttal testimony.

Additionally, Company witnesses Bryan Walsh and Tom Ray have scheduling conflicts on June 7, 2022. Given that both of these witnesses will be addressing the Company's generational operations, the Company proposes to present these witnesses as its first panel and requests the witnesses be excused from the remainder of the hearing following any cross-examination and questions from the Commissioners.
